MOOD: 😊 full

MUSIC: The Vulcan lute, which is not tuned to a diatonic scale

Wingsuit cliff jumpers. (<https://www.livejournal.com/away?to=http%3A//blog.wired.com/defense/2008/10/video-wingsuit.html>)

Oh, yeah, that dance.

I did something today I haven't done in months. Eleven months. Heck, in almost a year.

After I did laundry this morning, I went and got Puerto Rican takeout from the little place down the block. I guess I'd kind of ceded it to Amarilis after the breakup, which might have been silly, but seemed like the right thing at the time. And now I'm thinking she probably ceded it to me, meaning we lost them two customers, which is silly.

Anyway, they were really happy to see me.

And I am now curled up on the sofa with a pile of classic Trek, surrounded by the wreckage of bunelos de name, fried plantain, rice and beans with sausage, tamales, and albondigas. So that was a pretty good lunch.

I wonder what's for dessert.

In the meantime, have some Indian people dancing on trains:

This looks like a good idea.

You could try the Banana Cafe on the hill.

Get up to the Northeast--New York, Hartford, Providence. It's Carribean food heaven up there.

If I wanted to teach myself Puerto Rican cooking, where do you think I should start?

That wingjumping vid makes me wish I were the kind of person who liked rollercoasters. Alas, the meat doesn't like that particular kind of adrenaline...

But oh, I found a place that might possibly teach me to fall off walls! It's teen-oriented, so I've emailed them to ask if they take adults too. Cross your fingers for me!

I freaking LOVE that video! I hunted it down after seeing the movie Inside Job.

Wow! I've heard of gliders around the Gale, and it has to be a lot like that. Amazing to watch, though I think I'd beg to be excused from participating. Thanks for sharing.

~is wistful~ Why do I have to go to work today again? An afternoon on the couch with lunch and classic SF sounds like a much better idea.

...It would probably be Blakes 7 for me, though.

have "Metora" running through my head.

Also, for some reason, I'm having a bout "What Would Happen If."

WWHI....the yupyups met up with Dominar Rygel XVI.

Great vid, BTW. :)

Oh, the envious! I'm stuck in a motel room in Lexington, MA, and the only delivery options are gwailo Chinese or Domino's. Everything you described sounds yuuuuuuuummy. (I would normally have the car, and be doing something interesting about lunch, but my last pair of contact lenses died Saturday and I haven't been able to get them replaced yet. (The glasses are more than 10 years out of date and I'm so not safe to drive with them, and the prescription ran out months ago on the contacts...)

And yeah. I did the "cede stuff to an ex" thing only to find out that the ex did that as well, too. We don't get good training in graceful breakups as a rule, do we?

This looks like a good idea.
